The F-117 was the most advanced combat aircraft of the Cold War. It was a single-engined aircraft, which was carried by a specially modified C-130 Hercules or a KC-135 Stratotanker, and it was designed for deep penetration of the Soviet airspace to attack key military, administrative and economic targets, including the Central Soviet. The design team for the F-117 was the same team which created the SR-71 Blackbird. This was the culmination of cooperation between Lockheed, McDonnell Douglas, Northrop and TRW. It was a sleek aircraft with distinctive long delta wings, which made it very aerodynamic. Designed as a stealth fighter, the F-117 could fly faster than Mach 2.5, and was used extensively by the US Air Force and the CIA as a "stealth bomber" during the 1990s. It was a slow bomber, with a range of up to 3,000 miles, but could carry a conventional payload of as many as 2,700kg (6,100lb) of conventional bombs. The first F-117 entered service in 1986. The first operational unit was the 1449th Combat Wing, 1st Fighter Group at Nellis AFB in Nevada. By 1990, the F-117 was in service with all USAF combat squadrons and CIA operational squadrons. The F-117A was the standard issue model until 1994. During the late 1980s the F-117 was among the most advanced aircraft in the world. It was a real threat to second-generation fighters, such as the F-14, F-15, F-16, MiG-25, MiG-31 and Su-27, and was supposedly the only plane ever to have shot down an enemy jet fighter, the MiG-25, in combat. The F-117A's other advantages included: no radar warning or jamming measures available to enemy interceptors. It could be completely refue

Not only because Clinton has pulled ahead in the polls, but also because of the opposition party's intolerance of dissent, particularly among African Americans. Last week, the Democratic Party's freshman House member, now representative, from Alabama, Rep. Terri Sewell, wrote on her Facebook page about her support for a former Tennessee congressman, Rep. Harold Ford. "I am honored to support Rep. Harold Ford (D-TN). He has a proven track record of fighting for hard working Alabamians and making our communities safer," the 11th district representative wrote. "His openness d0c515b9f4

Events table contains 5 columns - user_id, date, time, event, and is_teacher. Here is my query $user = Auth::user()->id; $teachers = DB::table('teachers') ->select('teachers.teacher_id', 'teachers.first_name', 'teachers.last_name') ->join('events', 'teachers.teacher_id', '=', 'events.teacher_id') ->get(); return view('users.main', compact('user', 'teachers')); i want to get the user_id of this event. Any help? A: You can use whereHas() method like this: $user = Auth::user()->id; $teachers = DB::table('teachers') ->select('teachers.teacher_id', 'teachers.first_name', 'teachers.last_name') ->join('events', 'teachers.teacher_id', '=', 'events.teacher_id') ->whereHas('events', function ($q) use ($user) { $q->where('user_id', $user); })
